Daily Market Report

- Gold price (XAU/USD) extends its rally to around $4,381 during Friday's early European session, gaining 1.30% on the day.
- The upside move is supported by growing expectations of US interest rate cuts in 2026.
- Safe-haven demand amid rising geopolitical tensions continues to underpin gold prices.
- Market participants are closely watching upcoming US economic data to assess the future path of interest rates.
- The US December Nonfarm Payrolls (NFP) report will be a key focus next week.
- At its December meeting, the Federal Reserve cut rates by 25 basis points, setting the target range at 3.50%–3.75%.
- FOMC Minutes showed officials favor further rate cuts if inflation continues to ease, though views differ on timing and scale.
- Lower interest rates reduce the opportunity cost of holding Gold, supporting demand for the non-yielding asset.
- Geopolitical risks, including renewed tensions between Russia and Ukraine, have increased Gold's appeal as a store of value.
- However, the upside may be capped as the CME Group raised margin requirements for gold and silver futures, potentially limiting speculative buying.
