Daily Market Report

PRECIOUS METALS TRADING

- Gold (XAU/USD) maintains a positive bias for the third consecutive day, trading below the key $5,200 resistance level.
- Bulls are waiting for a sustained break and acceptance above $5,200 before targeting further upside.
- Rising geopolitical tensions, including increased US military presence in the Middle East, support safe-haven demand.
- President Trump's strong stance against Iran and nuclear threats adds to market uncertainty.
- Persistent global trade uncertainties continue to underpin demand for Gold.
- The US implemented a 10% tariff on non-exempt goods, with potential plans to raise it to 15%, increasing market anxiety.
- Concerns over retaliatory measures and global supply chain disruptions further boost safe-haven flows into Gold.
- The Federal Reserve's January FOMC minutes show no urgency to cut rates, and even discuss possible hikes if inflation remains high.
- Reduced Fed rate cut expectations support the US Dollar, limiting gains in the non-yielding Gold.
- Focus shifts to the upcoming US PPI data and FOMC speeches, which could influence USD demand and determine Gold's near-term direction.
