Daily Market Report

- The US launched fresh strikes on multiple targets in Iran after Trump vowed to "hit them hard," marking a major direct military escalation.
- Iran's IRGC shut the Strait of Hormuz to all vessels, cutting off a critical global oil route that carries over 100 million barrels daily.
- Oil surges to near $91.00 as US strikes on Iran continue, with the Hormuz closure threatening severe global supply disruptions.
- Iran launched a fresh missile barrage targeting Jordan, Kuwait, and Bahrain, widening the conflict across the region.
- Israel's Home Front Command issued fresh warnings after new attacks from Lebanon, signalling the northern front remains active.
- Gold languishes at 7-month lows, with the weekly chart showing further room to fall as bearish momentum builds.
- Gold steadies above its year-to-date low on a softer USD, but the bearish bias remains firmly intact amid Fed hike bets.
- Silver broke below its 200-day moving average and rebounded to near $64.00, with the year-to-date low still in focus.
- Silver ETFs bled for a fourth straight month in May, while gold snapped its year-long inflow streak.
- The USD bulls hold the upper hand above 99.50, while EUR/USD's downward-sloping moving average reflects a broadly bearish tone ahead of the ECB meeting.
